SUMMERING OUT OF TOWN

Well-Known People Who Are Spending Happy Days.

The Cruise to Cape May on the Steam Yacht Nada—Social Sayings and Doings.

Miss Katie Lower has gone to Colonial Beach for a few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry F. Duval have returned from Atlantic City.

Miss Katharine Joyce of Massachusetts, who is spending the summer months at Berkeley Springs, Va., and will return the 1st of September.

Among the Washingtonians who cruised to Cape May on the steam yacht Nada were Mrs. Alexander Britton, Miss Florence Gaffney, Miss Bennett, Mr. J. O. Norwood, Mr. Louis Clephane and Mr. Charles M. Busch.

Mr. W. E. Spier, wife and daughter are summering at Harper's Ferry. They, with a number of Washingtonians, are stopping at the Summit House.

Mr. J. E. Hamilton and family have taken a cottage for the remainder of the summer near Colonial Beach.

Miss Genevieve Wilson, of Cedar Bluffs, Va., has concluded a month's visit to Miss Annie Stevens, of East Washington, and, with Miss Stevens, will return home today, stopping on the way at Lynchburg, where they will visit mutual friends.

Master Jesse Williams will leave tomorrow with a party of Annapolis schoolmates to spend a month on the Eastern Shore of Maryland.

The Misses Russell, of Georgetown Heights, are spending the summer with friends at Cape May.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Waggaman are at Cape May. They are registered at the Stockton.

Mr. B. F. Leighton and family are spending the summer on the coast of Maine.

Dr. J. C. Wise, U. S. N., is among the recent arrivals at Capon Springs.

Having completed a visit to Saratoga, Col. E. C. Walford will spend the remainder of the season at Asbury Park.

Mr. Arthur Kneisel, of Louisville, is spending his vacation here with his sister, Mrs. Leo Twissler. He is the youngest student of the Louisville Manual Training School, and is also a local correspondent for the Louisville Commercial.

PRETTY AND NEW.

A PRETTY birthday gift received recently by a summer girl was a soft kid black belt, with an oblong and very heavy silver buckle. She could not understand why the monogram was put on the wrong side of the buckle, until there fell from the package a tiny parcel.

When this was opened she discovered a sterling silver belt buckle. It was on a safety pin, which is to be fastened on the band of the skirt before the belt is put on. The top of it was a square piece of silver which turned over like a flap of an envelope. The belt is slipped under this and is effectively held in place. The fastener bore her monogram.

"Oh," she said, "the case is reversed from last season. Now the people in the cars and streets have to turn around to read one's name, instead of when one faced them, as of old."

RICH WOMEN'S FADS.

MRS. ALMERIC PAGET has a fad for collecting handsome fans. One which she inherited, however, from her mother, Mrs. Whitney, has a gold and ivory stick, a lace mount, and is valued at the trifling sum of $1,000.

Among enthusiasts for fans are Mrs. Sloane, Mrs. Whittever Reid, Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt and Mrs. Stewart Webb, who own fortunes in these fluttering fads.

One of the treasures in Mrs. W. R. Vandewater's library is a whip which belongs to her husband, a gift from friends. The whip is made of solid whalebone. The cost of this little gift is said to have been $2,000.

SHOT HIS COMPANION.

Lad Playfully Points a Rifle at Another With Fatal Results.

Philadelphia, July 24.—William Henzey, aged seventeen years, was fatally shot in the forehead by William Simonon, sixteen years old, at Berlin, Can-Sen county, late yesterday afternoon, and died in Cooper Hospital about 11 o'clock last night. Simonon was committed to the Camden county prison by order of Assistant Prosecutor Carson.

Yesterday Henzey, Simonon and the latter's sister, Gertrude, left Berlin for the purpose of gathering huckleberries in the swamps on the outskirts of that town. They took a rifle with them to have some practice. During the day the boys found enjoyment in killing snakes and small birds. About 5 o'clock they became separated, the brother and sister strolling off together with the rifle.

The brother and sister were in the bushes where the berries were abundant, when, shortly after 6 o'clock, they heard a call from Henzey to come where he was, as "it was blue with berries."

Simonon grabbed the rifle and ran toward the bushes where Henzey was. When about twelve feet away Simonon halted and shouted, "Ray, Henzey, you fooled me. Now you will have to take that back."

At the same time he raised the rifle to his shoulder. As Simonon was in the act of lowering the gun it was discharged. Simonon was alarmed and called to his sister to hurry, as Henzey had fainted. When they reached the side of the young man they were horrified to see a hole in forehead. He was lying on the ground unconscious.

SPENCER KNEW HIS BROTHER.

It Is Believed That His Memory Will Return.

Philadelphia, July 24.—The heavy veil which enshrouds the memory of Herbert

Spencer has been partly thrust aside, and at last he is able to obtain a glimpse into the past. Charles B. Spencer, of Kansas City, a brother of Herbert, came to the Philadelphia Hospital yesterday, and was at once ushered into the young man's presence. The recognition between the two was mutual. Herbert grasped the extended hand of his brother and said that he recognized him as some one that he had known very well in the past. Charles Spencer then explained who he was and that he had known very well in the past. Charles Spencer then explained who he was and that he had known very well in the past.

"When you tell me that you are my brother," Herbert then remarked, "I seem to realize it. Yes, you are my brother. My mind seems clearer, as though a weight had been lifted from it, for you are the first person that I have met since I have been here toward whom I feel a natural affection."

The two brothers conversed several hours upon events connected with Herbert's past life, but although the latter showed more interest than formerly, he failed to remember anything.

It is the purpose of Charles to take his brother to the home of his parents in Kansas. What will be done with the young man when he reaches home is not known. It is thought, however, that he will be kept at home and not placed in a medical institution. His brother hopes that when he reaches home and comes again within the loving influence of home life that his lost memory will return.

HEADLONG OFF CABLE CAR

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hensell, an Aged Couple, Quite Seriously Hurt.

The Husband Was Accidentally Thrown Off and His Excited Wife Followed Him.

A peculiar accident, in which Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hensell, an aged couple, residing at No. 136 I street northeast, were severely injured, occurred last evening on the corner of Delaware avenue and H street northeast.

Mr. and Mrs. Hensell, who had been visiting in the northwest, boarded an eastbound Columbia car at the corner of Ninth and New York avenue. Before crossing the railroad track at Delaware avenue the car made its usual stop, and then on the other side of the tracks let off a passenger.

The passenger, who occupied a rear seat, got off hastily and the conductor rang the bell for the motorman to go ahead.

The car was crowded at the time, and no sooner had the passenger alighted than Mr. Hensell, who was sitting on a front seat, and for some reason did not hear the bell, also attempted to get off.

He had just reached the step, when the car started with a jerk, and Mr. Hensell was thrown to the concrete on his head. Mrs. Hensell, who was sitting beside her husband, and saw him fall, became so excited that, without waiting for the conductor to stop, she jumped from the car after him. She fell headlong and was seriously injured.

The cries of the women in the car instantly attracted the attention of the conductor, and the car was immediately brought to a stop.

When the passengers went back to pick up their injured couple they both lay stretched out on the street as if dead. They were hastily carried to Morley's drug store, at the corner of Third and H street northeast.

An examination showed that Mr. Hensell had been badly bruised and injured internally. His wife's head and face were cut in many places, and it is thought that she also sustained internal injuries.

After Mrs. Hensell's wounds were dressed the couple were removed to their home. They say that the whole affair was an accident and attach no blame to the conductor.

FORTUNE IN A TRUNK.

Deeds to a Valuable Silver Mine Discovered.

New York, July 24.—Mrs. W. R. Newburger, formerly a resident of Baltimore, but now living in this city with her three children, has unexpectedly discovered that she is the owner of mining property valued at the least little sum of $500,000.

Mrs. Newburger came to this country thirty years ago, settling in Baltimore. She was then but eighteen. W. R. Newburger three years later met her, and the two were married and had a buton man.

After three years they moved to New York, where they lived in that city with their three children, named Blanche, Robert and Alfred, until the husband's father died. That was in 1888.

The family was left in comfortable circumstances, and no one thought of looking over a trunk which contained the man's papers. The family moved to this city, and not until one month ago did the children examine the contents of the trunk.

On a particularly rainy Sunday Robert went to the garage of the house, and after rummaging around in the trunk, finally came across a paper yellow and dusty with age, which upon examination, was found to be a deed executed by W. P. Rose, of Gunnison county, Col., who conveyed to W. R. Newburger thirteen lots in the Petersburg Silver Creek mining district, Colorado. Elated with his find, Robert hurried downstairs and informed his mother, brothers and sister.

Lawyer Beckhardt wrote to the recorder of deeds of Gunnison county, and received the reply that the deed was duly entered upon the books, and furthermore, the intelligence that the property covered on ore mine, estimated to yield a half million of dollars.

HER TRUNK IS MISSING.

Visiting C. E. Delegate Looking for Lost Baggage.

A complaint was received at police headquarters today that Mrs. L. C. Wilson, of Kansas City had been robbed of a trunk containing clothes and jewelry during her attendance at the Christian Endeavor convention. The statement of the case was made by Mrs. Burrell, a lady who keeps a boarding house on Ninth street and with whom Mrs. Wilson stayed.

At the close of the convention Mrs. Wilson sent her trunk to the Baltimore and Ohio station by Baggageman Gardner, of Ninth street and New York avenue. When Mrs. Wilson reached her home, she was told that her trunk had not arrived.

She left without her baggage and requested her landlady to look it up today. Mrs. Burrell reported the matter to the authorities. She knew, she said, that the trunk had been delivered at the station. The case was turned over to Detective Proctor for investigation.

Peddled Stolen Railway Tickets.

Dubuque, Iowa, July 24.—A young man called at a local ticket broker's office yesterday and offered a quantity of railroad tickets for sale. He showed about 1,500 tickets, of which 500 were blank, while the remainder were to various points. The broker sent word to Passenger Agent Farling, of the C. M. & St. P. railway office at Wyoming and he was valued at $12,000.

SHELTER FOR THE WAYWARD

Work Secured for Discarded Prisoners and Outcast Men.

PRACTICAL HOME FOR NEEDY

William F. Downey, a Religious Worker at the Jail, Its Founder—Has Been in Existence Less Than Two Years, But It Is a Great Blessing to the Poor.

Persons passing along L street northwest, between Sixteenth and Seventeenth streets, have noticed a large brick building, built two stories high. It is situated far back from the pavement, and there is a spacious grass plot in front. Steps on the outside lead from the ground to a balcony on the second floor. Frequently old and young men are seen out on the balcony. Then again one catches the odor of boiled cabbage and frying meat.

On the second floor of this building is located an institution of new ideas and plain existence. It accommodates all classes. The discharged jailbirds jostle against the ordinary red-top, the gray-haired slimmer sleeps and eats beside the youthful beggar, and the social outcast tells to the uninitiated the course which has brought him to the lowest round in the ladder. But at the homeliest these characters are given a chance to brace up, get a square meal, a good sleep and fit themselves for work. If they are worthy the friends of the society assist in procuring for their adopted wards some honest employment.

Anyone is admitted without official red tape. Although only a year or two old, the institution boasts of never having turned away from its doors a single seeker for shelter and food. During last winter the average attendance was from thirty to fifty each night, while now there are but ten or twelve boarders at the midair hotel.

EVERYTHING IS COMFORTABLE.

A representative of the Times visited the place recently. It is small, but carries with it an unusual amount of solid comfort. To the right of the doorway, on entering, is a curtained apartment, where, during the day, the cot and bed clothing are kept. A long table stands in the center of the room, and at the farthest end is a long kitchen stove, with all the necessary utensils and dishes. The cook, an elderly man, came to the home soon after it was started, and having neither home nor money, and yet desirous of doing something, he was given his present position. He has become a permanent fixture, as has also another old man, his assistant.

An illustration of the working of the home is found in the efforts in behalf of an aged inmate who came to Washington to get a pension and ran out of funds. He had no place to go, not in trouble and was directed to the home, where he was taken in a pitiable object. He now has a new pair of crutches, gets three meals per day and wears decent clothes, while the home people are assisting him to get his pension. Influence has been at work to that end, and the pension is nearly ready to be started.

The founder and supporter of this institution is William F. Downey, the well-known up-town trolley man, whose chief work Sundays has been to visit the District jail and give religious instruction to the inmates. From them he learned of the strong temptation to discharged prisoners to sin the second time. Many prisoners, when released, would call upon Mr. Downey for assistance, and he conceived the plan of a home for such men and also for other wanderers, where they would have no temptation.

The St. Vincent de Paul Society has taken hold of the project and since then there have been some excellent improvements. At the present time the cots are placed about the room at night an hid away during the day. In a few months bunks, on iron frames, will be erected along one side of the room. The kitchen and pantry will be partitioned off and an outside door will be constructed a bath and wash room.

There is quite a good library for the benefit of the guests and should they desire they may play checkers, but smoking and drinking are positively prohibited.

OBJECTS OF THE HOME.

Speaking of the object of the home, Mr. Downey said: "We have in our midst today a class of men for whom there seems to be no place; namely, discharged prisoners, convalescent invalids from hospitals and destitute workmen, many of whom, through lack of employment, are forced to wander from place to place, ever in danger of arrest and imprisonment. There was no refuge for the discharged prisoner, who, if he begs in the street for a few pennies, is at once arrested, imprisoned and condemned to work out his sentence. The need of a practical plan for the permanent benefit of this class has been particularly felt by those engaged in reform work in the prisons and hospitals."

The first yearly report of the home shows the following record from February 9, 1895, to February 9, 1896:

Number of lodgings furnished, 3,780; meals, 11,788; temperance pledges administered, 340. Twelve persons were assisted in reaching their homes and 63 assisted in securing employment.

An example of the work of the home may be found in the following incident: On February 11, 1895, a youth of about nineteen years of age came to the home, ragged, half starved, and very ill from the effects of a tramp from Florida, where he had gone for the purpose of picking fruit. The frost having almost entirely destroyed the fruit crop, and being unable to find other employment, he was obliged to return North, his only food for a time being frozen oranges. After supplying his wants and learning his history, correspondence was opened with his people, with the following results:

A letter was received by the above-mentioned young man from his mother, he having been absent from home for eight months, during which time his father had died, leaving the family in destitute circumstances. A further inquiry was instituted and aid was furnished the family, and Officer Quinlan, who had been detailed on the case, secured the son's transportation home.
